

Contents

Acknowledgements

Abbreviations

Introduction: A Phenomenological Approach to Language

1. Getting phenomenology right
2. Getting phenomenology historically right
3. The path ahead

Part I. A Heideggerian Framework

1 The “Place” of Language

1. The world of Significance
2. The articulation of Significance
3. Linguistic versus pragmatic articulacy
4. The heterogeneity of sentences
5. Linguistic Articulacy

2 Phenomenological Commitments

1. Language as language-in-the-world
2. The idea of prepredicative foundation

3 The Disclosive Function of Linguistic Signs

1. Heidegger’s ambivalence about language
2. Phenomenological concepts as formal indication
3. Heidegger’s ambivalence explained
4. Linguistic signs as compound instruments

Part II. Merleau-Ponty: The Presentational Aspect of Language

4 Language as the Expression of Lived Sense

1. The efficacy of language
2. The phenomenology of lived sense
3. Creative and established expression
4. The aspectual presence of language
5. The Heideggerian framework revisited

5 The Art and Science of Indirect Sense

1. The differential structure of indirect sense
2. The inchoate rationality of indirect sense
3. The presentational function of style
4. Painting as a model of deliberative activity
5. Style as a preconceptual generality
6. Presentational sense as indirect sense

Part III. Wittgenstein: The Pragmatic Aspect of Language

6 Language and the Structure of Practice

1. Appropriating Wittgenstein
2. Language-games
3. Practice constitutes meaning
4. The incoherence of full determinacy
5. Rules reconfigured
6. Rules constrained
7. Pragmatic sense

7 Coping with Language

1. Rule-following practices
2. Prepredicative language-games
3. The Heideggerian framework completed
4. The disclosive function of language

Part IV. Some Philosophical Implications

8 The World Disclosed

1. Heidegger on the “Reality Problem”
2. Linguistic contact with the world
3. Between realism and nonrealism

9 Phenomenology and Semantics

1. Two approaches to language
2. Weak functional foundation
3. Moderate functional foundation
4. Intelligent absorbed coping
5. The challenge of pervasive conceptualism
6. Dissolving bedrock

10 Phenomenology and Beyond

1. Below the experiential surface
2. A shared outlook
3. Embedding and extending phenomenology

Notes

References

Index